Dr. W. J. Cowardin Files Answer and Denies That He Used Threats.

Another chapter has been added to the litigation over the ownership of the boat between them as soon as they succeeded in getting him out of the joint ownership of the gasolone launch Geneva by the filing in the Chancery Court of an answer on the part of Dr. W. J. Cowardin to certain specific charges and statements made in papers heretofordiled by his uncles, Dr. L. M. Cowardin and Alderman S. P. Cowardin. A date will be set shortly for final argument after which the question of ownership will be determined by Judge Grinnan W. J. Cowardin makes specific denial of any threats of violence, or of any improper conduct, stating that his visit to the launch on May 18, 1911, was in company with John Armstrong Chaloner, to whom he desired to show the property, but as to the suggestion of any violence or threats, he says that he "absolutely denies the insinuations and charges contained in the bill in connection with that visit," and especially denies that in leaving the boat, or at any other time, he used any violent or offensive language to S. P. Cowardin.

The bill sets forth that the launch systems was built on the Grant The state of the comparation of the plant on their part to divide the ownership of the boat be ween them as soon as they succeeded in getting him out of the joint ownership. AMERICANS WIN FROM ENGLISH POLO TEAM

Challenging Officers Outridden and Outmanoeuvred by Clever Meadowbrook Players. Edwards, of Visiting Squad, Proves Star of Day.

Proves Star of Day.

New York, June 9—America crushed English's hope of regaining the international polo cup at Meadowbrook today, where 22,000 continually trilled spectators saw the challenging British cavality officers outridden and outmanoeuvred and finally defeated by a score of 4½ to 3½ goals. Although the final score was half a goal closer than in the first match, the English players were less of a factor in to-day's game for only once were they on even terms, and that for two minutes, about the middle of the geme.

To-day's victory gives the Meadow-brook team undisputed possession of the oup until another challenge is received. The match was not only close, but full of brilliant runs and remarkable recoveries at critical points.

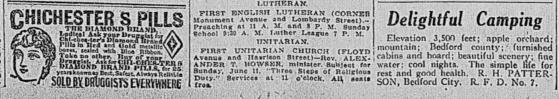

American team work was much more in evidence than in the first game, and this, backed by the quick-running ponies, was epough to outweigh the beiter mallet work of the English of the coronal substantial that shown to-day by the British cavality officers.

No such defense of a goal, however, has ever been seen in this country as that shown to-day by the British cavality officers.
